AN ENGLISH THRUPE TO GREENLY.
LONDON, Aug. 21.—Clement R. Mar-ham, Secretary to the Royal Geographical Society, who served in the Arctic expedition of 1856 in search of Sir John Franklin, has written a letter apropos of the recent charges made against the Greely party. In this he says: "The accusation of murder and cannibalism made against the Greely party is a disgrace to American journals.
Decency would have suggested silence until Greely had submitted his report to the Government. There may be a remnant of truth in the charge. It is possible, but unlikely, that brave men in the last extremity should have succumbed." Marham draws attention to the fact that a similar cruel accusation was made against Sir John Franklin's expedition, and quotes the noble words of Admiral Sir John Osborn, who commanded one of the Franklin search expeditions: "Why attempt to lift the veil with which the All-merciful has been pleased to shut out from mortal ken the last sad hours of brave men battling with famine and disease?" Marham continues, saying:
"The American Navy Department should have controlled and been responsible for the expedition. The party should never have been left without a depot ship wintering within accessible limits of the coast, the difficulty of navigating channels north of Smith's Sound was ignored and precautions were neglected, hence the catastrophe, for which there is no excuse." Lieutenant Greely's observatory work will form a valuable supplement to the series of observations which were taken by the ship Discovery in 1875. The Greely expedition will bear the test of a thorough scrutiny. The expedition is mistaken, however, in stating that Cape Britannia was visible from Lincoln Bay, on the west side of Robson Channel. The real Cape Britannia is invisible from Lincoln Bay, the most distant visible land being Cape May and Mount Howland. The point which Lockwood and Dezhnev reached was Cape May, not Cape Britannia. The next land they reached was Beaumont Island, with a small island between it and the mainland and Britain.

PARIS, Aug. 21.—There were four deaths from cholera at Marseilles Tuesday night, and one at Toulon. The public health in the latter city is improved. A report that cholera had appeared at Dunkirk, in the department Du Nord, is denied. During the twenty-four hours ended last night the deaths from cholera in the following departments of Southern France were: Hérault, 24; Gard, 3; Aude, 1; Eure-et-Loire, 15. Cholera is decreasing at Marseilles and at Toulon, but the disease is increasing in the Province. At Clermont, near Toulon, a priest officiating at the altar was seized with cholera, and died on the spot.

Associations of the world convened last welcome. The Count speaks English fluently, and, having visited America, is conversant with the American association's methods of work for young men. Dr. August Wilhelm wrote to the conference expressing sympathy with its objects, regretting that his health prohibited his meeting with the conference as a delegate, and invoking the Divine blessing upon the convention. Count Bernstorff was respected President, and W. H. Seaman, of London, Secretary. The convention meets here on the invitation of the Berlin International Committee whose headquarters are at

A large number of postmasters in this State have lately been using a revolving wheel as a general delivery for letters. The wheel had all the letters arranged around it in alphabetical order. It was placed behind a glass window, and parties looking for mail could ascertain whether there was anything for them by simply turning the wheel until they came to the letter with which their name commenced. This saved the postmaster the trouble of looking every time there was a call for mail. The wheel was invented in Hillsboro, Illinois, in 1881, and sold to postmasters throughout the state. An order has just been received from the first assistant Postmaster-General that the wheel must not be used any more, because the public exposure of letters by its use is a violation of the postal law.
